

The TransLoc app's routes page shows a lot of confusing paths without making it clear which ones are better or worse, making it hard for users to figure out how to get around. Additionally, the ETA shown isn't always clear or reliable, which makes it harder for users to trust the app when planning a ride. Because of this, people get frustrated and might opt not to use the app altogether.